Abraham Lincoln High School
2162 24th Avenue
San Francisco, CA 94116

Classes, sports, friends, jobs, tests, dances, spirit week, festivals, rallies, assemblies, fund raisers, concerts, field trips. We're tying them all together at Lincoln High.

Together

Abraham Lincoln is one of the inner city schools in San Francisco. Like all of our schools, the student body is diverse, reflecting the ethnic backgrounds of The City's residents.

Our classrooms are filled with many looks, facial features characteristics of most every place on the globe. Our halls are filled with voices echoing languages spoken as far away as China and Poland and as close as Mexico.

Just as the looks and languages differ, so do the personalities. Attitudes exhibiting conscientiousness and seriousness co-mingle with frivolity and humor. Some students show their school spirit by participating in every event while others just attend classes and quickly head off to other things.

Like the student body, the teachers, staff and administrators are very different. Some are entertaining, often joking, while others are serious and down to business. Different approaches to teaching are necessary with such a varied student body.

All of us: students, teachers, administrators and staff have one thing in common. We are loyal to the teaching, learning and extra-curricular activities we share.

FUN raising

Boo! October 13 marks the day of "October Fest, 1990". I guess having a half day meant that people were half normal and half dressed in the 80 degree weather.

The food and drinks that were offered by the clubs and organizations at Lincoln helped to beat the heat. The different cultures of the clubs' members offered us a variety of cuisines to enjoy. You had to stay on your toes to find the foods your mouth was watering for, or maybe you decided to try a new "taste sensation".

Games were offered for those who didn't mind looking foolish or just wanted to have fun. You could win free tickets to the Halloween Dance or a yearbook if you knocked down the pumpkins with a tennis ball.

The most popular event was the dunking booth sponsored by the Choir. Dunking, dripping and ducking underwater was more than a wet experience; it was a soaking one! Both teachers and students volunteered for the big splash into the barrel of cold water.

When asked how he felt about the dunking, teacher-volunteer Mr. Christianson said, "It was a little cold and dirty. I felt like a beached whale."

At least he got a chance to beat the heat, and it was for a good cause, too.

October Fest is a great day to eat, stretch, relax and enjoy the "Lincoln Life".

Excitement. Fun. Enjoyment. You experienced all of these if you attended one of Lincoln High's first dances of this year. Traditionally, Lincoln celebrates its first two dances on campus. Both of these dances were sponsored by the Associate Student Body who sent a warm welcome back to our large student body.

The Welcome Back Dance, 'We're All in the Same Gang", held on September 28, greeted the Class of '94 as well as the old crowd of Mustangs. As with most dances, the evening started out slow, but, with the help of a few enthusiastic individuals who were willing to get on the dance floor and the great music, the dance li-ven'd up. Decorations in our colors of red and gold gave us a big dose of Mustang Power. We all felt a deep sense of unity being back together again and were reminded that we all need a little help from one another.

On October 19, the Halloween Dance, "Jam to the Dark Side", was held. The orange, black and purple colors and the decorations of ghosts, goblins and spider webs cast a mysterious atmosphere for this ghostly occasion.

We all go to dances to meet new people and "bust a move". But that's not all. Most of us want to take pictures with our friends so we can remember the fun we had and the people we were with. Yearbook Associates were the photographers for both of our opening dances, and they did a good job of keeping our memories alive.

SLOPPY

Lincoln's traditional Spirit Week was held October 22 through 26. On Monday, the weather was a little bit chilly, but the hallways were hot. This was twin day, and many students dressed alike with one or two of their friends. Everyone was seeing double! At lunchtime, the Class of '91 sponsored "Double Dare" in the courtyard. This was both fun and messy, and the spectators clapped and laughed as the final contestant, senior Blaze, threw a mess of whipping cream and cereal to win the flag and bring the seniors to victory. Naturally, seniors rule!

On Tuesday, beach wear was the order of the day. Usually, this is the easiest day to find the right clothes for the theme, but this year, the weather didn't cooperate. Students in shorts and tank tops chattered their way through their morning classes. By noon, the sun was out, and everyone was ready for "Dodge Balloon" sponsored by the Class of '92. After two tournaments, Class of '92 vs Class of '94 and Class of '91 vs Class of '93, the final two competitors, seniors and juniors, were ready. Junior Jerome and senior Jason were under big pressure, walking back and forth, staring each other down. They did their best to out smart each other, but the contest ended in a tie when there were no more water balloons. Seniors rule? Juniors rule?

drenched with SPIRIT

On Wednesday, every student was seeing dots, polka dots. This was some strange disease for all Lincolnites! Polka dots on shirts, blouses, skirts, pants, in hair and even painted on skin was the order of the day.

During lunch, the Class of '93 sponsored another water balloon toss. This competition had a slightly different twist from the junior balloon toss the day before; the contestants had to throw over their heads, not facing their partners. The competition was hot and heavy once the freshmen were eliminated. Then the seniors fell victim to a poor catch, leaving the sophomores and juniors to battle it out. Experience won out, and Jerome caught the final toss bring the juniors to victory.

Thursday brought ghosts, witches, animals and just plain rags to the hallways as students dressed in costume. Some were unique, others common, but everyone had a chance to live out a fantasy as someone or something else.

The Class of '94 sponsored their first event at lunch. They awarded the senior class the "most spirited" because more seniors wore costumes then any other class. This event wasn't nearly as messy and wet as those on preceeding days, it still lived up the theme of Spirit Week - fun.

moment of ROYALTY

The crowning of the royal Homecoming Court was held on October 26, on the football field. Each winner was called down by Senior Secretary, Sarah Young, and was greeted by a thunderous applause.

The Freshman Knight and Maiden, Ricky Tieu and Clarissa Chan, were the first to be announced. The next couple were Sophomore Duke and Dutchess, Tommy Jung and Anna Tao. The Junior Prince and Princess, Thang Tieu and Kellie Eagleton, were the next to walk down the football field. Finally, it came to the seniors, and everyone waited in anticipation for the king and queen to be announced.

It was a time for laughter and a time for tears as the 1990-1991 Homecoming King and Queen were announced. While the other nominees looked on, King Barnaby Wong and Queen Tristi Glezer took their positions upon the royal chair, a victory seat they would remember for the rest of their lives.

Some of the candidates were asked, "How does it feel to run for Homecoming Court?" Here's what some had to say:

"I was really surprised when I won for princess. It's a good way to be recognized by the school. I love the roses and the crown." Kellie Eagleton.

"Running for Homecoming Queen felt challenging and scary. I came out not winning, but I felt like a winner inside for just giving it a try." Karen Yee

"I ran for the Homecoming Court King because my friend talked me into it, and I did it for fun. This is the best thing that ever happened in my life."

fighting it HOME

Having a double 4th period must have doubled our spirits as hugh crowds representing each class yelled, trying to out cheer each other. Getting everyone to "boom" out our "Fight Song", the cheerleaders, lettergirls and songgirls raised the crowd's enthusiasm. This year's Mustangs showed real spirit!

Then, the football players were introduced. Each player was given a rose and sometimes a kiss by the cheerleaders. Finally, the Homecoming Court was announced, and crowns were placed on the "honored" heads. The rally ended with the Lincoln Hymm.

On Saturday, the Washington Eagles took an early path to the Mustang turf and thought they were flying high when they scored the first touchdown. Our mighty Mustangs showed the Eagles how powerful Mustang meat is as they galloped for the two next touchdowns declaring us the winners.

The great support of our Lincoln Alumni, the faculty and student body showed the players that we have confidence in them, and they proved worthy!

At long last, the Bell is back where it belongs!

Our alumni showed up in scores for the Bell Game on October 27th. Under the direction of Jeff Stahl, the alumni provided a fantastic half-time program that included: a welcome to David Whitehead, president of the Alumni Association, introductions by Bill McCubbin, former yell leader, and a "Drive Through the Decades" procession of antique cars.

Bill McCubbin, an alumni from the Class of '59 and now a K101 D.J., brought real live coverage to the game as the announcer. He looked very spirited wearing his Lincoln yell team sweater.

The antique cars included a 1941 Ford Woody Surfer wagon, a 1957 Ford T-Bird Convertible and a 1973 Ford Mustang sponsored by Allied Engine Rebuild Co., a 1966 Chevy Corvette sponsored by Karen and Jack Stowe, a 1986 Chrysler Convertible sponsored by Carol Rees Donahue, and a 1991 Cadillac Allante Convertible sponsored by William Cadillac and Buick.

The program ended with Nancy Ng, 1991 Student Body President, greeting the spectators and the exchange of cheers and fight songs between Lincoln and Washington.

50th Year Celebration

After the Bell Game, Jeff Stahl planned a reception at the Tracadero House in Stern Grove. Former Lincoln coaches and players mingled with present coaches and players, and alumni and teachers exchanged school stories. Hot dogs and drinks were served, and everyone enjoyed celebrating Lincoln victory.

The same evening, Alumni went to the Irish Cultural Center for a 50's style sock hop. Carol Rees Donahue and Kathy Hidalgo planned this event for alumni, but some of the varsity football players showed up just to see what was going on. Thang Tieu, Robert Lau, Brandon Casey and Dwight Boudreaux were dragged on stage by Terry Lowry and interviewed when they "crashed" the sock hop.

Alumni Speak Out

Lincoln Alumni came to cheer the Mustangs on to victory at the Bell Game.

The Yearbook Staff had a chance to interview some of the members of the Alumni Association. When asked, "What do you think about the alumni Events?" everyone seemed pleased.

David Whitehead stated, "I think they are wonderful events. A lot of people came to the Bell Game. It's good to see Lincoln again after ten years. There are a lot of talented Alumni who are coming back to Lincoln to perform for the Talent Show on May 3rd."

Jackie Heiser Jackson comments, "There has been a lot of enthusiasm, particularly from the 40's, 50's and 60's. Obviously, the spirit is still alive as we saw at the Bell Game."

Linda Heider Hylen added, "Lincoln's Alumni has been very generous with their time and talent. This has been sheer fun from start to finish."

"Wall of Fame" Awards Assembly, Honorees Luncheon Talent Show and a Gala Dinner Dance will be held in May.

May Lincoln shine forever.

SECURITY

Last year, under Mr. Ramon Cortines' program of coordinating schools with business, Security Pacific National Bank adopted Lincoln. A panel of teachers headed by Mrs. Mayan Chang and a group of bank personnel planned programs to benefit our student body.

The most active venture allowed students to visit the bank's headquarters downtown. Each academic department was given a chance to take some lucky students for a day of big time banking. Students saw the art gallery, ate lunch in the corporate lunchroom and lusted over the large sums of money the bank processes daily.

At Lincoln, two bank executives gave workshops to help acquaint students with business practices. Mr. Marc Hyman spoke to P.E. classes about work place ethics and attitudes, and Mr. Barry Nelson gave a presentation on image processing for computer application classes.

Security Pacific also thought about the teachers and staff at Lincoln. On February 15th, the teachers and staff were treated to a luncheon and the "Simple Better Awards Ceremony." Eight teachers and staff were honored with certificates and medallions for their exceptional efforts at Lincoln. These honorees are: Mrs. Claire Dunn, Mr. Ira Fishman, Mrs. Rosemary Kamkar, Lt. Col. Robert Powell, Ms. Peggy Collins, Mr. Walter McTigert, Ms. Pam Miles and Mrs. Mary Nelson.

We are all looking forward to a long, successful relationship with our "adoptive" parents. Thank you, Security Pacific.

"My worst nightmare is about the school being on fire. There are flames surrounding the door and all I can think about is saving the copy and layouts for the yearbook. I forget about my students, my purse and my safety. I can think of nothing else, so I grab the yearbook box and run through the flames!" Mrs. Buchanan

It wasn't easy working with a new advisor and staff. There were so many new things that each of us had to learn. There were times we all felt like quitting. Many times things didn't work right like losing pictures, not getting the right pictures, cameras that don't always work right and staff who didn't complete their assignments by the deadlines.

But it wasn't all bad. At times, room 221 seemed more like home than our homes. We spent so many hours there that we joked about bringing a refrigerator, a microwave and sleeping bags. And, with the help of a few reliable people, we managed to "tie" this book together. We are proud of the book and hope that all of you will treasure it for years to come.

Our special thanks to Mrs. Buchanan who made a big commitment to us and Mrs. Nelson who generously provided us with everything we needed to help us reach our deadlines.

Know how you can get involved at Lincoln? Try joining the Interact Club! They really got things rolling this year with the annual canned food drive. More than 2500 cans were collected for St. Anthony's Dining Room, a charitable organization for feeding the homeless. Mr. Moncharte and his Chinese classes donated a check for $150.00 to the cause. The drive was a tremendous success, and the whole school pitched in. Both the check and cans were collected by Father Floyd, head of the organization.

Mr. Moncharte presents a check collected from his Chinese classes to St. Anthony's.

The canned food drive certainly isn't the only thing that the club has done for the community. They made $500 off the rummage sale that went to the Make a Wish Foundation and the Children's Hospital at Stanford. (The Make a Wish Foundation provides money so that dying children can have their last wish.)

Besides monetary donations, club members helped to clean up some of the San Francisco beaches, co-hosted a Senior Citizen's party with Catholic Charity and, along with Glide Memorial Church, they gave a party for the homeless.

These and many other contributions make the club a great asset to both Lincoln and the community. Get involved! Join the one and only Interact Club at Lincoln.

"The First Time"

Finding the right date along with the perfect dress and the just-right-fitting tux were finally over. It was Saturday, December 15th, a cool and rainy night, when the winter dream began.

Many couples started the evening with an elegant dinner in a nice restaurant or at home. They talked with each other and dined with their best manners. Then, through the drizzling rain, they hurried to Pier 41 where the Royal Star was docked. Everyone waited anxiously to board the boat for a romantic evening on the San Francisco Bay. At 9:00, the boat left the dock.

Sean and Melissa seem to be having a good time.

Inside, couples were jamming to the music provided by Style Beyond Compare. Many rushed upstairs to wait their turn to be photographed by Photo Perfect, so they would have a reminder of the evening to keep. Some couples stayed on the upper deck to watch and make wishes on the bright stars that shined down on them. A few lucky couples saw shooting stars fall from the sky into the dark water of the Bay. All too soon the clock struck 1:00 and the boat returned to dock. The dance was over.

All of the work and preparation that went into this dance was worth it. All of the worrying we did seemed insignifigant because the memories we shared from this wonderful evening will live in our hearts forever. I know that I will never forget "The First Time".

Valentine's Dance

"Even though not that many people went to the dance, the music was great, the decorations were wonderful, and everybody had a terrific time!" said Junior Nancy Tamashiro who attended the February 22nd dance which was presented by the Junior and Senior class. On that night the north gym was transformed into a hot dance floor.

The decorations for that night were set up to match the theme, "Tunnel of Love". Formed by balloons, two arches were erected to serve as ends of the tunnel with streamers on the side that served as blue water. There was also a big heart-shaped with blue and white balloons, in the middle of the dance floor. One might even think that they were really entering a tunnel of love. Besides the big balloon-shaped heart, there were also red, white and blue balloons, not to mention the cute little red Cupids that were all over the place.

Nigel seems to be feeling romantic with his dance partner.

The DJ's "Sound Beyond Compare" were truly beyond comparison! They played music that was of everyone's favorite and almost all who went got to show off their dance steps. Pictures were provided by Photo-perfect. Like the decorations, the picture background was also appropriate for the theme with two swans forming a heart.

The Senior and Junior classes deserve a big hand for the success of this year's memorable Valentine's Dance.

"This was the best dance we have had this year", said Angela Ly.

"It was good except there were not enough guys', said Angela Kong.

Did you know that there is a ballet dancer at Lincoln? No? Now you do! This dancer is none other than our yearbook's copy editor Kester Cotton. Originally from Portland, Kester moved here this year when he won a scholarship at the San Francisco Ballet School.

Talent is truly in the air for the six members of our Lincoln Quiz Masters Team. The team competes against other schools in six categories. The team is coached by Dr. Magid and Mr. Hahn. Four-year veteran Davin Douglas is team captain and team members are Kong Kwok, Kelly Okla, Melinda Wong, Fred Wu and Hernan Winardja.

Did you ever wonder who did that attractive "Class of '91" poster in the senior panoramic picture? Elisa Kuo is the talented artist who drew this poster. But, her talent does not end here as she designed the cute "Class of '91" T-shirt and the cover of this very yearbook. Our other designer is Jim Yoshimoto who designed the "Class of '92" T-shirt, the volleyball T-shirt and the Jog-a-thon button.

On February 2, 1991, Lincoln High's Academic Decathlon competed with other high schools in Science, Math, Literature, and Economics. Chris Taffs, the highest scorer on the Lincoln team won a gold medal in Mathematics and silver medals in Social Sciences and Science. Another out-standing member was Suliman Ahmad, who won a silver in Mathematics.

There is nothing like hearing the bell ring for your first period class. Nap time. The last thing you want to happen while you are dreaming of a beautiful Hawaiian vacation is for your teacher to try to wake you up. We all know what we would like to say, but let's just keep that to ourselves.

By fourth period, you begin to feel refreshed. Almost lunch time. You can't wait for that super burrito with cheese or Chicken McNuggets. Half way through 4th, your mouth is watering.

Part of everyone's school day is just trying to fight through the sea of students to get to class on time.

Finally, it's lunch time, the best period of the day. You're down on Taraval, having a good time, and you begin to think about going somewhere with your friends. You're all set to go and then someone reminds you that you still have 6th and 7th. You face the most difficult challenge at L.H.S., the "hill."

When you went down to Taraval, you never thought about getting back up.

When you start walking up the hill, you begin to feel fatigue flowing through your body. Usually, about the time you and your friends are too tired to talk, someone goes racing by and yells back at you, "This is better than a Jane Fonda workout."

By the time 6th period rolls around, you're too tired from climbing to do any work, so you just hang around McCoppin Park, resting to get your strength back. Then you remember that you have a test 7th period! You end up doing the one thing you least wanted to do, run up "The Hill"

Double trouble? Well not exactly. We would say good things come in pairs. Matching looks, similar habits, and the special closeness are some of the things that most people find fascinating about twins.

Am I seeing double? Many people have asked themselves this question, especially when twins are identical and wearing the same clothing.

Latrice and Patrice Johnson are interested in sports and play on the Basketball team. Photo by: Bordon Chin

Being a twin is something fun because you get double the attention from your friends, teachers, and even people you don't know. People come up to talk to you even though they might not know you.

Twins have a real closeness toward each other. They usually depend on and support each other no matter what happens. Twins may have other brothers or sisters, but that closeness they share cannot be as strong as the one twins share.

Being a twin not only has advantages but some disadvantages, too. For example, one advantage is being able to play tricks on friends, boyfriends or girlfriends and even teachers. Changing places on people, is quite funny. On the other hand, though, you can both get in trouble for something that your twin did. Also you tend to spend so much time with your other half and it gets on your nerves.

Lincoln has many sets of twins. We have identical twins, fraternal twins, and even those of the opposite sex.

A la mode

Remember when you didn't care about your hair or what you were wearing? You let your mother buy your clothes, and you didn't even know that fashion trends existed. Then "BOOM". You hit your teens and became aware of trends and the peer pressure to wear what your friends are wearing.

As teens of the 80's and 90's, we are familiar with fast changing rages. What was "hip" or "cool" yesterday is "rad" today. The "twist" was hot in the 50's, but would look dull compared to today's "M.C. Hammer Kick," or the "Electric Slide."

We have come from matted, greased hair in the 40's to pumped-up, sprayed hair in the 80's. Jeans and T-Shirts from the 80's now share with casuals, a trend in the 90's.

Sometimes what was 'hot" and then "not" comes back as a new trend making history for another generation. Some people are going back to the 60's trends and wearing bellbottoms and large plaids.

Maybe the next generation of Lincolnites will dress in long flowing dresses, three-piece suits and broad rimmed hats and dance the "jitterbug" at the Welcome Back Dance.

Stranger things have happened.

It's 12:02, and the big lunch break has finally arrived. Where will you go to satisfy that empty, growling stomach?

There are many lunch hangouts for the students at A.L.H.S. Some like to have their lunch off campus while others like to stay at school. If going off-campus, most likely students will go to Kentucky Fried Chicken, Lams, Eight Immortals or Lincoln Market, one of the most popular places to buy lunch or just hang out. Many others stay on campus in the courtyard or in front of the auditorium or gym. Some sit in the hallways or in classrooms eating their bagged lunches or buy lunch from the cafeteria or beanery. Some just sit with their friends and watch them eat and gossip. A few students go home or as far away as Burger King at Westlake.

There are also students who participate in sports during lunch playing badminton, tennis, basketball, football. It seems that they don't need to eat, but where do they get all of their energy without food?

Some students are involved in school activities, so they spend every lunch at meetings. They may not even get a chance to eat!

Maybe you have found a completely different place for lunch. Where do you go between 12:02 and 12:53?

It's a Friday afternoon and the bell rings promptly at 2:43 to free you from 7th period. This ends another long and tedious day at Lincoln. You dash down to your locker and meet your friends at your usual place. Your long awaited weekend has just begun.

For two splendid days, you can do what you didn't have time to do during the weekdays. There is now ample time to watch T.V. or to call your friends to catch up on the latest gossip.

If you're part of a closely knit family, then spending quality time with your loved ones is probably your main objective for the weekend. If you're completely the opposite, then maybe you enjoy to go out to the movies, shop until you drop, or just hang out.

When being asked what they do on the weekends, Mabel Chan, a sophomore, says, "When Sunday comes along, and I know my friends would think this is kind of unusual, but I go to church." Glen Chavez, says, "I go out to parties most of the time."

All in all, whatever you're doing, whether it's partying or going to church, it's in your time and you deserve a break from school.

Now that Alex is 18, he is "free and easy!"

no strings Attached

Happy Birthday to me! So, I'm finally 18. I'm finally free.

Decisions, decisions- the possibilities are endless. Should I run out and register to vote? Should I go to the party at the Club tonight? Should I buy a lottery ticket? Should I . . . ? Wait a minute . . . Now that I'm 18, does that mean that I'll have to pay $.85 for the bus? Could I get drafted? What if I get busted? I'll have to deal with the police, instead of my parents! What if my parents disown me because of what I did? I'll have no where else to go . . .

"Mom, I had the strangest dream last night, can you tell me more about how my life will change now that I'm 18?"

"You're leagally an adult once you've turned 18, so you lose certain protections you had as a minor. At the same time, you've gained new freedoms, and rights. You can rent your own apartment, for example, but this will mean a new responsibility: paying your own rent.

Going from childhood to adulthood is a great transition for most of us. It certainly has its ups and downs, but we now have the power to choose our own future. No strings attached. The choice is ours. Good Luck to all of us!

to Hitch or not to hitch

Now ask yourself this question. Out of all the responsibilities you have at this school, do you still have some time to be with someone special? Yes! We all do. We could be busy 24/7 and still make time for that special someone.

Having a relationship can be a very emotional experience at times. You may even call it "Soap Opera of the Young at Heart". No one said having a relationship would be eating as many burritos as we want, and sometimes it can be like eating a peanut butter and pickle sandwich with sour cream.

No one is expected to have the perfect relationship at sixteen or seventeen. As a matter of fact, one rarely ever has the perfect relationship. However, in relationships we hear this word almost everyday: TRUST! This is the primary key to any relationship. If there is no trust, there is no relationship. Period. Keeping our faith in one another can sometimes be extremely difficult. For example, a trusted friend tells you that your mate has been talking to someone else, and then your mate says "No I haven't." What do you do?

Take my advice: Believe none of what you hear, and half of what you see.

Link to the past

During the fifty years of Lincoln things have changed dramatically. As seniors, we have seen some changes, but just imagine the senior class of 1941 . . . no SAT, no AP exams, no ACH. Cars were a luxury. You would rarely see a senior, let alone a junior, driving to school.

How did the school look during the 40's? Well, for one thing there was no football field, no gym and no tennis courts, so games were played in Golden Gate park! There was no auditorium, so the first Lincoln graduates, the class of 1941, graduated at Washington High. Lincoln had two graduation times back then, one in June, and the other in February.

What about sports? They had football, soccer, baseball, tennis, crew and boxing, but didn't have any wrestling, badminton or girls sports either. Every Friday, there was a football game, and between the competing schools, there would be about 10,000 spectators. Now that's school spirit!

Things were different back then. You might think that they were better, but don't forget, they had some problems too. World War II decided many students' fate upon graduation.

Hookup to the future

Which career fields are you interested in? What sort of colleges are you planning to go to? These questions not only look familiar to me, but to all of you- the class of 1991. Many of us are still looking for the answers.

Some people will choose the college path. Education is valued, because it's understood that in the long run it will benefit and brighten our futures. Statistics show that the average annual incomes of high school dropouts, high school graduates and college graduates are $17,000, $26,000 and $46,000 respectively.

For some of us, a career path seems more preferable. We feel anxious to earn money at an early age. Work seems to be the alternative, according to senior Peter Tam who said, "I'm planning to work at Bank of America, and 'grab' as much money as I can!"

Some of us will decide to choose a military life after High School. The military may give us job training or college later.

There are other possibilities that I haven't mentioned, but whatever you choose, you should be proud because it's your decision and your life.

Add it up

Seniors! Do you think you have enough credits to graduate? Did you fulfill your requirements? Did you pass your proficiency examinations? Did you pass your swimming courses?

Remember we need to have completed a total of 220 credits of required courses to graduate from high school: 40 credits of English, 10 credits of World civilization, 20 credits of laboratory science including 1 year of biology and 1 year of physical science, 10 credits of U.S. History, 5 credits of Civics/ American Government, 5 credits of economics, 20 credits of P.E. or R.O.T.C., 20 credits of mathematics including 1 year of Algebraic concepts, 10 credits of 1 year visual and performing arts, 10 credits of same foreign language, 2.5 credits of Drivers Education, and 65 credits in elective courses.

A few years ago, we only needed 200 credits to graduate from high school, but now we need 220. It's hard to take so many courses, especially when we have some hard teachers, but don't use that as an excuse to just stop going to class and fail. You need to get a diploma before qualifying for a good job or applying to college, so go to class, pass your course, get your credits, and be ready for our special moment- Senior Graduation.

keep the Tie

Friendship. What does friendship mean to you? How do you feel about your friends? Can friends be trusted? Will our high school friendships last forever?

Everybody needs friends. We all want our friends to keep in touch. We want buddies to hang around with, to help us with our homework, to comfort us, to confide in. Sometimes we want them to give us their best advice. Other times we just want them to keep silent while we tell them about our problems.

During the last four years at Lincoln, all of us have found friends. These are the people we have grown up with and have changed from frightened young freshman to mature seniors with. They have helped us with classes, dates, jobs and decisions. Unfortunately, now is the time for us to find new lives as adults. Friendships will change because we are going our separate ways. Even though we will separate this June and find new friends with our new lives, let's all remember the years we spent together.

"That's what friends are for", Right?

dis Connect

Frank is reading Ricky Tsai his rights.

We're finally seniors! King of the Jungle! BMOC! Top Dog! Our senior year is finally here, and passing quickly. It's the most exciting, the funniest, the wildest, the craziest. We have our own special traditions: Pizza night, ice skating night, the picnic, the prom. It's our last chance to see our high school friends together, go to the Bell Game, harass our teachers, execute a prank on the school, and of course participate in senior cut day- all senior traditions at Lincoln!

Unfortunately however, senioritis sets in. We feel the need to disconnect from it all. Come midweek, the desire to go to physics mysteriously leaves us. We think: "Why go? I'm never going to use this stuff, anyway." Your car parked across the street has such potential. You could stuff your books in your locker, grab a couple of friends and nobody would know the difference. Right? You desire action. You want to get away from the monotony of the past eleven years, but assuming you pass that physics test on Monday, you'll be ready for your new life of freedom!

So . . . . Shake your booty, shake your hiney, and get going! We're the class of '91! We're the best!

Unity
to the community

We often ask ourselves this question: Why am I working? I'm still young, shouldn't I be out enjoying myself instead? Well, there are many reasons why teenagers, especially seniors, work. As we mature, money becomes more important and scarce. Our cruel, unreasonable parents, who don't provide cars and other mandatory things, are a major contributing factor to our monetary problems. Seniors have expenses like senior portraits, the prom, dances, class rings, caps and gowns, senior announcements, SAT, ACT, college applications, and car insurance. All help to run up the tab very quickly.

Some of us work to get experience, and to help out our families. Others work to get away from home, or to keep themselves busy. Meeting new people, and finding out their special interests is one fun aspect of working. We can get experience in fields that might be beneficial to our careers, too.

Most importantly, it's worth working, because the money will go to our good times and fond memories of our Senior year. These memories we will carry with us forever.

Fasten your seatbelts

It is a calm and sunny morning. As I rev up my car, and sit in the driver's seat, I recall a time when I had to get up and sit on a different seat- the bus rider's seat.

As a freshman, you probably are cursed with the use of public transportation. You don't have much freedom with your own transportation but there are a few benefits. You don't have to ask permission from your parents to use the car, you don't pay for gas, and you never get parking tickets.

In your sophomore year, you take driver's education and begin to learn the rules of the road. If you are fortunate you will have friends with cars, so you won't be on the bus as much this year.

By the time you are a junior you have mastered a few tricks like sneaking on the bus without paying, or 'bummin' off friends for rides. If you worked hard enough, you might have already passed the driving test, and be out on your own.

As a senior, your sense of responsibility has grown. You can handle yourself not only on the road, but in school, at the top. Sometimes, bussin' and bummin' are still necessary, but not nearly as often.

As I drive off to school, I see freshmen taking the bus and seniors driving to school, a cycle that is a trend, a trend that has been around for a long time.

tied in Knots

Missed the bus! A pop quiz in 2nd! I need a tutor in math! 2nd floor's restroom is locked again! Did I just take my Spanish book to my Economics class? What a day! After school when I am about to relax, there comes my mom's voice: "Honey clean up your room!" It never seems to stop! Or even more . . . The SAT has words on it I've never seen in my life! How can I prepare for it? Where should I start? Maybe I should just forget about the whole idea of going to college! Maybe . . .

I really wanted to go to the school dance next Friday night but no one is going to give me a ride home. Well! I can give up the school dance, but I will not give up the prom! That, I have dreamed of forever. What if too many guys ask and I don't know which one to pick? Or even worse no one asks me at all! Now that's embarrassing!

Wait a minute. Before even thinking of all these events, I really need to know whether my pocket is deep enough to afford these expensive senior activities!

Our senior year can be lots of fun, and filled with excitement, but it can be stressful too. Hopefully we can sort everything out without having stress overload. Good Luck!

Pizza Night

The week after the traditional turkey dinner was shared across the United States, a group of Lincoln 1991'ers went out for a real American tradition-Pizza Night. Highly spirited people sat together from 7p.m. to 10p.m. at the Round Table Pizza on 16th and Geary Street.

The usually quiet Round Table Pizza came alive with seniors chatting about graduation parties, the prom, college and general "coming of age" experiences.

A few dollars was a small price to pay for a fun-filled night with friends.

Pizza night was well chaperoned by hungry teachers.

Move

Ice Skating

Lincoln Seniors headed off to the suburbs for another get together on January 18th. At Fashion Island, most seniors tripped, slipped, fell and got their rear ends soaked on the ice. Of course, there were a few Lincolnites who gracefully glided across the ice like professionals.

Although most everyone was willing to get out on the ice and make a fool of himself, there were a few seniors who decided to just sit and watch the others.

Seniors' Bowling Night

Tons and tons of seniors bounced into the Westlake bowling alley Friday evening, February 1st. Other bowlers stepped back to view all of the school spirit and enthusiasm bursting from the Lincoln seniors.

A few seniors didn't want to "show off" their lack of bowling expertise, so they played videos and socialized. Overall, attending seniors agreed that bowling night was a bodacious time for all!

in action

Hey! Open your eyes! The Junior Class Officers are ready for some serious action.

President Sheryl Uyan comments, "We have many things planned for this year. The Junior and Senior Prom is always a priority, and we are also sponsoring the Valentine dance. Secretary/Treasurer Melinda Chu states, "We are having a Junior Pizza night and raising funds for our senior year" Vice-President Kellie Eagleton claims, "The members of the Junior Club are doing a great job this year."

This year's officers are involved in more than just student government. Sheryl, who has been a class officer since her freshman year, is also a member of Lincs, the Junior Academy of Finance, and the Yearbook staff. Kellie is an outstanding athlete who plays on Lincoln's volleyball, softball and basketball teams and is an Irish dancer. Melinda is in the Interact Club and the Junior Academy of Finance and was a member of the Lincoln Swim Team in her sophomore year.

These three officers are working together to make a blinding force that leads the Class of '92 onward.

Dream Date

It's Friday night and the phone rings. On the other end of the line you hear this dreamy voice, the voice of that gorgeous hunk/babe that you have been dreaming of since the first time you laid eyes on him/her.

Finally, your dream date is asking you out. The only problem is you already have a date with the class nerd. Life just isn't fair!

It's time to make a decision. Should I go out with the nerd or the person of my dreams, the one that will make all of my friends jealous?

The class of '92 has some good advice:

"You don't really know how he is. He might be a total turnoff and not the dream guy you think he is, so be grateful with what you already have and don't take others for granted." Ina Wong

"I would say I'm sorry. I can't go with you anymore to the nerd and go with my dream girl." Jerome Fernandez

"Go with the one who really wants you." Eddie Homer

"Go with the one who looks better." Edwin Blanco

Obviously, the class of '92 has some very different opinions. What would you do?

My dog ate it!

"Johnny, where is your homework?"

"Well, as I was eating my breakfast this morning, I put my geometry paper on top of the table and my mom accidently threw it in the garbage along with the leftover cereal."

"Why didn't you get it out?"

"I did but it was kind of messy, so after I wiped it off, I ironed it because I didn't want to turn in a wrinkled paper. The iron was too hot so it burned."

Everybody has his own excuse, some far fetched and some down to earth. After all, do you want to tell the truth and get into trouble, or would you prefer to make up some crazy excuse and hope the teacher laughs.

When asked, "What is the best missing homework excuse you ever used," some juniors answered:

"I accidently used my homework for toilet paper." Melinda Chu

"I was late yesterday, so I didn't hear you say that we had homework." Nancy Tamshiro.

"There was a blackout in my house last night." Amy Xu

"I had to paint my house." Jose Avila

No matter what excuse you use, saying something is better than just shrugging your shoulders and admitting that you didn't do it.

Officers stand out

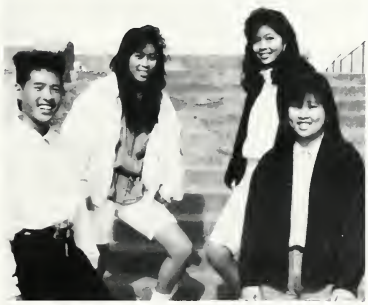
The class of '93 officers are just like all average teenagers. They love to talk on the phone, hang out with their friends, shop at Stonestown, watch T.V. and have fun. They agree on most things, with a few small exceptions. President Mark likes to read magazines; Vice-president Angela likes to go bowling; Secretary Margaret listens to music; Treasurer Elizabeth bakes cookies.

They also agree on same important issues this year: we must have world peace, clear the world of hunger and stop prejudice. They feel that these important world problems need to be addressed so their generation and others to follow can enjoy the future.



Mark, Angela, Margaret and Elizabeth stand tall for the sophomore class.

What was the best excuse for missing curfew?

Parents can be embarrassing!

Has this ever happened to you? You're about to leave from home when your dad says to your date: "Please sit down. Let's talk for a little while, so I can get to know you better." He asks something like: "What school did you attend before?" "Do you have any hobbies?" "What school subjects interest you?" Maybe he asks about your date's family and background, too. You try to tell your Dad it's time to go, but he keeps on going, as if he'd never heard you.

Dads aren't the only problem, though. How do you feel when your mom, her hair full of curlers and still in her bathrobe, insists on dropping you off in front of school in plain view of your friends. How about when she's mad at you, and goes on to reprimand you while your friends are standing there! Maybe she says something like "You have plenty of time to be with your friends, but when I ask you to do something for me, you say you have too much homework."

Let's face it, parents can be really embarrassing. Hopefully we will graduate before they humiliate us so much that we have to leave town.

By: Eugenia Chou and Phuong Thai

T.J., John and Sean all agree. Parents can be embarrassing.

Do you have enough school spirit?

I have as much school spirit as any body else. I wouldn't be going here if I didn't.

What makes a date romantic?

Imagine drifting across a marble dance floor under sparkling lights with the guy of your dreams, waves of soft music circling your feet. After a dance, you join hands and walk into a world of sugar white beaches, palm trees, and warmth. Roses and champagne await you at your table.

The sun starts to sink into the waves until it is swallowed up by the ocean, and the shining stars fill the nighttime sky. He will ask "Are you cold?" and without waiting for a reply, he takes off his jacket and wraps it around your shoulders.

Perhaps you would find this kind of date boring. You might like to be invited to a big party with music jamming, tacos to eat and plenty of sodas.

Whatever your idea of a romantic date is, probably everyone will agree that you need one essential ingredient for romance—the person of your dreams!

by: Elisa Kuo

Jeanne, Tanya, and Frances have different ideas about what makes a date romantic. Nancy would rather study.

Would you wear bell bottoms?

I would wear them if they were the latest fad. Anyway, I think my mom has a couple stored away.

Maybe, because people are such victims when it comes to style. Everybody wears the same thing.

How is Lincoln better than you imagined?

It's better because it has a very carefree attitude, and there's not a lot of pressure on you. The teachers help you to do your best. Eugene Podkiminer

Lincoln is better than I imagined because almost everybody is nice. Warren Seto

You can always spot a freshman

What makes freshmen so distinguishable? First of all, freshman are a lot smaller than us, the sophisticated upperclassmen. During the first week, they carry with them not only their schedule and a map of the school, but also a confused look. They have to lug all their textbooks around during the first few weeks, because they don't have a locker yet.

They are extremely obedient, never cut class, and never voice complaints. One place they surely won't be found is in Mr. Sullivan's office, and he never has to yell at them to get to class after the tardy bell has rung. They make the least noise of in the hall and at the spirit rallies, too.

Some of them make attempts at being cool, imitating the seniors, but that is never successful. You don't find them in the bathrooms much, because they don't want to get their faces squashed on the wall, and you don't find them in isolated parts of the school for the same reason.

All in all, though, they are good kids. They are trying to make it here, just like we are. And truth be told, it wasn't all that long ago that we timidly walked down these halls ourselves as Freshmen.

Freshmen, watch out!

You walk into a huge building on a six block long campus. You walk into the room assigned by the letter over the summer. Boy! 40 minutes in homeroom for roll call, reading the bulletin, and getting the schedule you have to follow everyday.

"What happened to my schedule?" you ask your homeroom teacher. Guess what he said? "You have to talk to your counselor about it." "Isn't the counselor supposed to have everything ready for us?" you ask.

This is high school. You have to take care of your own problems and get everything straightened out yourself.

You have your own freedom now. The attendance office will never get on your tail if you are absent a lot, like in middle school where they call home every time. Some teachers don't even bother if you cut because they feel that it's your responsibility to go to class.

This sounds pretty good until you realize that everything is your responsibility here in high school. You can decide to do more things and are less restricted by both your parents and the school. This also means that you're the one who has to have an explanation if you fail.

Don't get caught by culture shock!

Some Words on ALHS

Roving question person, Jenny Ho, went through the halls at Lincoln asking teachers this question: "How do you feel about your teaching career at Lincoln High School?" Although she expected to get some variety in their responses, most of the answers were similar. Maybe the fact that it was a beautiful day and a Friday helped the teachers to be particularly positive about their career choices.

"I enjoy teaching at Lincoln. The students that I have taught, I have found to be very interesting. I have learned alot from my students, maybe more from them than they have from me." Dr. Armand Magid

"I love Lincoln. My students make me work hard, and I'm learning alot." Ms. Ann Jorgensen.

"I love Lincoln. The students are great as a group. Our social and adademic achievements have improved every year in the past ten years. We still have room for improvement. Keep up the good work." Mr. Des Meules

"We have a wonderful student body at Lincoln. I am thankful for the continual support of the Math Department Head. I feel expecially honored to be working closely with the senior class." Mr. Chuck Christianson

"Lincoln is great. The kids are great. We have tremendous potential, but we all need to work harder to achieve that potential. I'm proud to be a Mustang." Ms. Cecelia Elfenbein

"It is enjoyable. When it isn't fun anymore, I'll stop teaching." Mrs. Rochelle Macaluso

"I've enjoyed teaching here at Lincoln. The students are wonderful." Mrs. Claire Dunn.

"Teaching has been an exciting career, and after twenty-six years at Lincoln High School, it's very rewarding to hear from students who remember their experiences at Lincoln." Ms. Homoiselle Davis

"After twenty-seven years, I have become part of the walls, but I still enjoy teaching most of the time, particularly with eager, inquisitive students." Mr. Sidney Gottfried

The Bulletin

Most of us start our day at Lincoln by quickly scanning the Bulletin. Usually, the announcements just keep us informed so we are able to do our jobs, and we read them with little enthusiasm or interest. Occasionally, we read an item that stimulates a response. Below, I have listed my 8 favorite Bulletin items from September through January for your perusal.

Teachers: Students who have no schedule at all report to 164. J. Brown
Attention Club Sponsors: Someone has ordered 4 boxes of candy from Favorite Fund Raising Products . . . I don't know who it belongs to. Call me if it's yours. Ext. 3307. R. Kamkar
Hollywood Calling: Paramount Pictures is holding an open call for making "athletic, preppy type" youngsters . . . No experience in acting is necessary . . . You must look like you enrolled in a New England Prep School. P. Lum
Lunch For Today: Cook's Choice. Friday's breakfast: Cook's Choice
Santa Claus May Be Coming To Town but the Vietnamese Club will be there first with flower grams . . . . . L. Lempert
The "Dirty Dozen" Lives despite the fact that their faithful leader Ray is on sabbatical . . . . . Twelve faculty members have not contributed to the faculty Fund. You know who you are. N. Koch
Pizza Night postponed due to Turkey day . . . . . R. Kamkar

Dianne Feinstein

The World Affairs Club, sponsored by Mrs. Eileen Kennedy-Brandt provided Lincoln students with two exciting programs this year.

In September, Senior Doug Le introduced Democratic candidate for governor Dianne Feinstein who came to speak. As part of her campaign, Mrs. Feinstein spoke at selected high schools across the state, and was warmly welcomed by the students at Lincoln. Ms. Feinstein spoke about many issues that she wished to address if elected governor: the environment, education and the homeless. She spoke truthfully and directly to the students, treating them like adults- even if most could not yet vote. Though she missed the election by a close margin to Republican candidate Pete Wilson, she was nonetheless a great speaker and an excellent candidate for governor. Another special guest at this assembly was former Golden State Warrior Nate Thurmond who also spoke on the importance of education.

withdraw his forces from Kuwait, the World Affairs Club brought 5 speakers for a panel discussion on the Gulf Crisis. Speakers included: Ms. Anna Azari, vice consul of the Israeli Consulate, who defended Israel's position on the UN deadline, John Rothman, a Foreign Affairs specialist, who stated that the U.S. goals were to keep the state of Israel in tact, to keep the Saudi family on the throne, and to keep the U.S.S.R. out of the Middle East in general. Dr. Adnan Shihab-Eldin supported the US position, along with the above two adding that no Kuwaiti citizens will participate in a puppet government set up by Iraq. The Director of Swords into Plowshares and Vietnam veteran, Michael Blecker, and a Palestinian-American professor at Standford, Dr. Michel Nebti, were opposed to the use of violence to solve the problems. The assembly was designed to provide Lincoln students with a variety of views on the issue. Five days later, the U.N. troops began military aggression code named Desert Storm.

Win the Gold

The Department of Physical Education and Athletics sponsored the Annual Fall Athletic Awards Night. This exciting event was held in the library, on January 17, 1991.

In early fall, many sport lovers went out for the teams that were available including: Girl's Tennis, Varsity Volleyball, Cross Country, Soccer, Varsity Football, and Junior Varsity Football. By the end of the season, the coaches and teammates got to know each other well. They went through ups and down and built strong friendships.

Winning a trophy is a great honor. If you ask anyone that has been on a team, they know that it isn't only one person that wins and brings home the trophy, but each and every team member working together to form a special bond. This is the true feeling of being on a team.

The results of the Award's Night are as follow:

Return to Glory

The Varsity Mustangs finished a great season this year. After winning their two pre-season games, they suffered two setbacks against Galileo and San Marin before the comeback to a strong season.

The high point of the season was the Bell Game where this winning team, cheered on by crowds of students and alumni, finally brought the Bell home after ten long years at Washington.

"Winning our first two pre-season games gave us a good head start. Unfortunately, the next two losses set us back a little but not so much to keep us out of the championship," reflects Robert Lau.

"This year's football team was really great with the number of players we had. Everybody gave 110% every game, especially the linemen. We were good, but we came up against a really tough team at the championship, Galileo. One thing we should all feel great about is that we got the Bell back" said Thang Tieu.

"We're #1," gestures Shabon Hankerson as Mel Leroy looks on.

Play Ball

This year's 1991 Varsity Baseball Team, coached by Mike Torrise, is working very hard to make this season the very best.

Second year player Jose Avila says, "This year we have an aggressive team. If we want something, we'll take it, and we want Candlestick."
Senior Mike Huddleston added, "We might not have as much talent as we had last year, but I know if we work together we will make it to Candlestick."

Senior Eugene Lumpkin comments, "This year's 1991 Baseball Team is a good, hard-working team. So far this year we are 3-0 with the leadership and guidance of Coach Torrise and Coach Mitchell."

Junior player Reny Nunag says, "If we work together as a team, we might be able to make the championships."

This team deserves a big hand for their great start. Keep up the good work!

Shooting Stars

The 1990-91 Mens' Varsity Basketball Team had a good season this year. They practiced countless hours with extreme determination and cooperation under the supervision of Coach Harvey Briscoe. Beating Balboa brought them to the playoffs where they lost a close game to Galileo.

"I felt this year's team was pretty good, and although we made it to the play-offs, I felt we could have gone further. I just hope next year's team does better," Derrick Jackson - '91.

"I felt that this year's team was real good, and it looks real promising next year too." Ernest Perkins - '92

"I feel that after many hard times during this season, we can still remember some good particularly the dethroning of Balboa in the Playoffs!" Blaise Yates - '91

"We are the only team to beat Balboa in the league. We knocked the Bucks out of the playoffs." - Coach Harvey Briscoe.

Hoop Magic

In the beginning of the season, the Girls' Basketball team was doing great. They were a promising starting team. The more games they played, the better they got. Then a problem arose. They lost Latrice Johnson for three weeks, but were lucky to get Kellie Eagleton to cover her position.

It seemed that the team was sure to make it to the playoffs until that fateful Tuesday afternoon when they met Balboa in the Bal gym. Both teams played well, and the game could have gone either way until the referees questionable calls against the Mustangs cost us a chance at the playoffs. Balboa defeated Lincoln, 64-57, but even the Bal team felt that the Mustangs were treated unfairly.

Sophomore player Mariana Alonzo had some good things to say about her teammates. "Being on the team is like having a second family. Everybody is close. I'm glad I'm on the team so I can have wonderful friends that I can count on." "Hopefully, we can make it to the playoffs next year," adds Kellie Eagleton.

Rumbling Wrestlers

The 1991 Wrestling Team is coached by Lloyd Kearns. This year's team worked hard together although this was not a victorious season.

First year wrestler Michael Agnello says, "I feel this years wrestling team is a good, small, young team that will stick together. We won some of our meets, and I feel we'll be a more mature and experienced team next year."

Adam Kim added, "Taking into consideration that many of our teammates this year are young and inexperienced, I think we did extra-ordinarily well in showing effort well beyond 100%."

Considering all of the optimism by the team members, we can assume that we will see a very strong team next year. Since all of the team members are underclassmen, they will grow with experience. Good luck!

"This team is loaded with lots of talented seniors. It will be hard to replace them next year. They should do real well this season.

Leaders for the boys division are captain John Alipio, Raymond Pau, Ronald Zhang, Aaron Edmonston, and Bennie Lau. Girls captain is Fong Wang with strong help from Lan Pham, Yovanna Chow, Alessandra Minichiello and Agnieszka Okrojeck." Coach Des Mueles.

"Our teammates work very hard together and we are one of the best swim teams in the city." Bonnie Lau

"Everyone is working very hard to make this '91 season the best." John Alipio.

"We have an outstanding team this season, and all of our swimmers will try their best to make this a successful season." Bennie Lau.

"Being on the swim team has been the most wonderful experience for me during my high school years. I'd like to thank Coach Des Meules who has been ardent and helpful. He has always been there for each member of the team." Fong Wang.

The Returning Champs

At the beginning of the season the Lady Mustangs did not know what to expect since their average height was only 5'3". During the season, they overcame this height concern with the determination of Coach Gloria Siech who helped them build a strong defensive team.

This hard working team had an almost perfect record, 23 to 1, earning them an invitation to the championships. At the AAA Championships at Kezar Stadium, the Lady Mustangs played against Lowell. It was just like a frustrating tug-o-war. Everytime we're an inch away from victory, the other team came up from behind.

Lincoln went the extra mile and earned the title, the best team in San Francisco.

This year Mona Choi won the Teresa Lee Award giving her the distinction of being the best player in San Francisco. Mona Choi and Shirley Lee won All-City 1st Team. Kellie Eagleton was placed on All City 2nd Team. Honorable Mention was given to Tara Ho, Jenny Tan, and Paula Truong.

BITS & PIECES

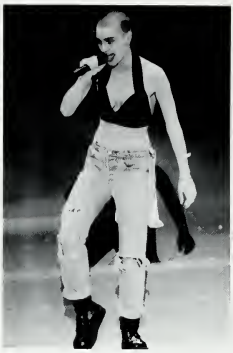
Rock superstar Phil Collins started out as a drummer in the hit British group Genisis. He revived the group's career in 1976 by steppin forward as a vocalist and then he became a major rock soloist. And he still is. His latest album, "... But Seriously," has been on the charts for dozens of weeks and still has more to come.

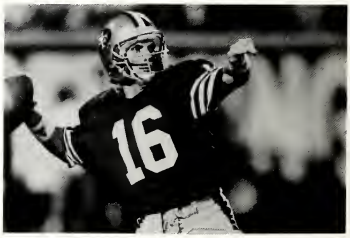


Sinead O'conner is something else. The 23-year-old Irish singer with her shaved head and immense eyes had been topping the charts all year. And to top off her year of success, she won the best video of the year by a female at the seventh annual MTV video Music Video awards.

Nolan Ryan can still put plenty of heat on his fast ball. And at the age of 43—in a game dominated by guys half his age—that says something about his lasting abilities. He holds more than forty major league records, including most nohitters, most one-hitters, and most strike outs.

Jim Henson was a puppeteer with an enormous following. On May 16, 1990, at the age of 53, he died from a severe case of pneumonia. During his career, he created an endearing menagerie of creatures-such as Kermit, Big Bird, and Cookie Monster. They first appeared in Sesame Street in 1969 and will probably be around forever.

The group is called New Kids on the Block. They sing, dance, and rap together. The Boston-based group is a heavy-hitter on any stage. To date they have sold a cumulative and commanding 17 million albums and have had five Top Ten singles, of which three have made it to No. 1.



In August, 1990, a 34-year-old football player named Joe Montana made history. He negotiated one of the richest contracts in NFL history with the San Francisco 49ers. He would be paid 13 million over four years to play football. He has been called the greatest quarterback in the history of football.

WORLD NEWS

The Persian Gulf

On August 2nd, 1990 the world stood by and watched as Saddam Hussein's troops invaded Kuwait. As an act of "intolerable aggression", the United Nations imposed sanctions on Iraq. According to President George Bush, the sanctions weren't working after a month's attempts and thus he continued the buildup of troops to the gulf late in 1990. The nation stood on the brink of war for several months.

The United Nations also set the deadline of January 15th for Iraq's withdrawal from occupied Kuwait, after which it would be necessary and proper to use military force to get the job done. Thus, at 3:30 in the afternoon on the 16th, the American people turned their TV's or radios to find that the bombs had begun to fall. And by the end of the war 100,000 sorties had been flown, dropping bombs that when combined were equivalent in TNT tonnage to more than 5 times the size of the nuclear bomb dropped on Hiroshima.

Meanwhile, Saddam Hussein had been very particular, and very consistent in doing exactly what he said he would in the event of a war. His troops fired SCUD-type long range missiles at Israel and Saudi Arabia, set many Kuwaiti oil fields afire, and began dumping crude oil into the gulf.

Iraq surrendered on Wednesday February 27th, and a cease fire was declared at midnight, eastern standard time. Peace negotiations were taking place early in March. Though the war had stopped, the destruction had been done. Eighty-Nine US soldiers died and perhaps more than 100,000 Iraqi's, counting civilian casualties. Civilian violence continued to take place in Iraq and Kuwait, after the war was officially over, and as of the beginning of March, the prospect of this violence stopping anytime in the near future seemed slight.

And perhaps even worse was the massive environmental damage caused by the ignition of the oil wells, and the dumping of oil into the gulf. This damage was certain to be felt in the years to come.

Every year, Close-Up, sponsored by Mr. Gene Dyrhaug travels to Washington, D.C. to observe our government in action. This year, Benjamin Salles, Noel Hanna, Walter Chang, Cynthia Carrasco and Nolen Edmonston were in Washington when the Allied forces fired on Iraq.

"When we reached the hotel, we learned that two missles were fired at Iraq. I felt like I was living through history." Walter Chang

"We were in the Rotunda when, suddenly, security police came in with 18 or 20 German Shephards looking for something suspicious. We felt we were in the center of the bull's eye." Mr. Gene Dyrhaug

In memory of Timothy William Romei, a graduate of the Class of 1986, who was killed in Iraq during Operation Desert Sheild. Mr. Romei was a Lance Corporal in the United State Marine Corps and a helicopter crew chief.

Mr. Romei was a member of Lincoln's J.R.O.T.C. as a company commander, a member of the Boy's Drill Team and the Drill Platoon.

The Soviet Union

In an attempt to change the economy from command to market, the Soviet government had a very difficult year. The economy was going downhill through '90 and into '91, poverty and famine were rampant, and people in the Soviet Republics began to strike. The most outspoken of these was Lithuania, along with the other two Baltic states: Estonia and Latvia. Strikes arose everywhere, and the republic began making efforts to become its own country.

Desperately trying to keep the Lithuania with the Union, the USSR used military force starting in January of 1991. People were outraged, and Boris Yeltsin, President of the Russian Republic, released a political time bomb when he called upon Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to resign. Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze resigned also, saying that the USSR was heading for a dictatorship.

Early into March, the situation seemed to be getting shakier all the time. Massive demonstrations, unparalleled since the 1917 revolution, were being held in favor of Mr. Yeltsin. At the same time, the government was attempting to impeach him for his statements. People across the globe simply had to wait for what was to happen next.

South Africa

Although many tragic things were happening globally in the '90-'91 school year, some great things happened as well. It appeared that a possible end to the racial apartheid laws in South Africa was very near. White South African President Frederick De Klerk and recently released black civil rights leader Nelson Mandela had been meeting frequently. On February 1st, 1991, De Klerk announced the repeal of the Land Acts, Group Areas Act and Population Restriction Act, thus removing some of the last legal remnants of apartheid. (Blacks had still not been granted equal representation in Parliament, though.)

Mandela led the African National Congress (ANC) party in the struggle for freedom and equal rights. Unfortunately, white vs. black wasn't the only issue. The Inkatha party composed primarily of Zulu tribe members also fought against the ANC because the two groups held different views about the problems, and what should be done to solve them. This news began to lighten up some in the early months of 1991 as well, when Mandela and Buthelezi, leader of Inkatha, began to meet and discuss making peace even if they still disagreed with each other on many issues.

One Germany

Earlier in the school year, the biggest news was the reunification of the two Germany's. East and West were rejoined once again, as the people physically helped in the destruction of the Berlin Wall-the wall that had separated the two countries for so long.

People around the world had very different views about the reunification. Many felt that it was a wonderful change, restoring what should have been long ago. On the other hand, some worried. United Germany started both World Wars. The West by itself is already incredibly powerful, and once the economy bounces back, it could get even more so. A strong united Germany is an obvious thing to be scared of, but also a powerful ally with a strong economy that could help many countries across the globe.

At the same time, many of the countries in Eastern Europe were trying to break free of Soviet control. Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania, and others were shooting for market economies and democratic governments. People waited to see if these reforms would actually be possible. Only time would tell.

California Drought

Massive changes taking place globally didn't stop things from happening here at home, either. Legislation was passed limiting people to 50 gallons of water per day, as California entered its 5th year of the longest recorded drought in the state. Many people did what they could to conserve, but unfortunately there were still those citizens that wouldn't abide by the laws. They continued to hose down their driveways, water their lawns and wash their cars. Thus the state saw that voluntary conservation wasn't enough.

Praying for rain, Lincoln students, along with everyone else, wondered what would happen in the future, and when the drought would end.

To Lincoln Reach-out:

This year has really proven that we can do anything through Him Who gives us strength. God has kept us faithful, together and encouraged. We'll miss you guys a lot. Thanks for all the memories and continue sharing God's love.
